Conscious Discipline

Happy Valentines' Day! This is the time of year that we let each other know how much we love each other. At school we have been using rhymes that are known as "I Love You Rituals." Conscious Discipline teaches us that there are 7 Powers of Self Control that help adults become pro-active instead of reactive in times of conflict. The adult's perception of a situation dictates how they respond to children. The Power of Love helps us see the best in others. "I Love You Rituals" are used to create a connection between children and adults and focus on solutions. When children have conflict it is seen as an opportunity to learn. The children are learning to communicate their feelings to resolve their conflicts in positive ways. You can create silly rhymes or songs to help you get through challenging parts of your day. Here is a fun "I Love You Ritual!" for you to use at home:

I ♥
you

"Twinkle, twinkle, little star," –It is important that you are at the same height as the child for this activity. Hold hands with the child and raise them slightly above his head. Wiggle your fingers against each other to represent "twinkling" of stars.

"What a wonderful child you are!" Place your hands on the child's shoulders and the child's hands on your shoulders.

"With bright eyes and nice round cheeks." Touch the child's face with your index finger next to their eyes, then down to their cheeks.

"Talented person from head to toe." Take the child's hands and raise them up high and then down low.

"Twinkle, twinkle, little star," Wiggle your fingers against each other again.

"What a wonderful child you are!" End with a big hug!
